

WHA-led Graduate Medical Education Training Grant Applications Open

Wisconsin Graduate Medical Education (GME) programs have been utilizing Grow Our Own grants to create and expand Wisconsin GME residency opportunities since 2013, and have until noon on Aug. 23, 2022, to apply for this latest round of Wisconsin Department of Health Services (DHS) grant funding. The DHS Request for Applications can be found here.

“Grow Our Own” matching grants create public-private partnerships based on WHA’s 86% equation.

The “Grow Our Own” Equation

“In 2019 WHA asked the state to include other in-demand specialties beyond the original primary care specialties in the physician residency grants and the state made that change in the 2019-21 budget,” noted WHA Senior Vice President of Workforce and Clinical Practice Ann Zenk. “GME programs can now support new residency opportunities for physicians in diverse specialty areas where demand is high, and we need to grow our workforce faster.”

WHA led efforts to create matching grants for GME creation and expansion in 2013, and for allied health and advanced practice clinician training grants in 2017. DHS has awarded 85 Grow Our Own grants to date, spurring $53 million in public/private funds invested in growing our Wisconsin health care workforce. As a result of GME grants Wisconsin has an additional 145 residency slots, and when this pipeline is full, there will be 49 additional physicians completing their residency training each and every year.
